Core Decodable: 102

Illustrated by Len Eber
by Maria Johnson

The Sky in Garden In Decodable
"It has a big garden."

"My dad's job is in a skyscraper."

Max and Jackie liked gardens.
"I will ask my dad to take us," said Max.

"How can that be?" asked Jackie.

A garden in a skyscraper?"
One morning, Max's dad did take the kids. They rode the train. The train raced down the tracks.

Dad, Max, and Jackie were downtown fast. They walked to a tall skyscraper. It seemed to be made of dark glass.
Jackie looked way up. “Wow!” she said.

“This is the place,” said Max.
"No way," said Max.
"Is this the garden?" asked Jackie.
On the sidewalk, there were big planters. They were filled with plants.
By the man's desk were plants.

"Good day," said badge. "Good day."

The three walked inside. A man with a
"That is not the garden," said Max.

Jackie thought it looked like one.
The three stepped on the elevator.
Max's dad.
"My desk is back there," said Max's dad.

The elevator took them way up. It stopped, and they walked out.
it was real.
Jackie thought one flower was wax, but
All around were plants and flowers.
This is not yet, said Max. "Just wait!"
This is a nice garden," said Jackie.
They were going up.
Soon the three were back on the elevator.

"Time to go up," he said.
Max's dad set stuff on his desk.
She could see was sky and plants. Jackie was shocked. All skyscraper root. The three walked out on the Jackie and Max walked around the rooftop garden. Plants filled the space.

"Wow! This is one big garden!" Jackie said.