saw meadows, barns, and silos. The class looked out the windows. They drove the bus to a farm.
said Joan.

"Those stone walls have big rocks. Some stone walls. Some low stone walls. Some of the meadows had wire fences."
"Is that an ox?" asked Donnie.

"Had not seen a farm. The kids were from the city. Some..."
Miss Dock smiled. “Nope, it looks a bit like an ox. But it is just a big cow.”

“Ick! It is eating grass,” said Joan.
The cow was mooing now.

"No way!" said Joan.

"We eat grass, too," she said.

Miss Dock slowed down the bus.
Miss Dock asked: "What did you eat for breakfast?"

The bus was going slowly down the road. The road had big holes. Miss Dock had to dodge them.
"How can oars be grass?"
"Oatmeal is not green," said Donnie.
"Rice is grass?" asked Joan.
Miss Dock parked the bus at the farmer's house. She looked at the farmer's lawn. "I will show you," said Miss Dock.
